SP:- Relevance to employment The applicant's contract with his employer ceased in December 2016 and the applicant states, therefore, that undertaking this course is not with the aim of promotion or as a requirement by his employer. The applicant has now been offered a position in the financial sector, a different area of employment, and he states that " an overseas business degree will suit me for my career". However, it is noted that this career was only due to commence in February 2017, the position offered to the applicant does not appear to be available indefinitely, nor is the position on offer subject to the completion of a management course.

It is further suggested that where submitting a fresh visa application for consideration that, proof of the applicant's return to the country of origin to demonstrate compliance with previous visa granted, be provided e.g. immigration re-entry stamp to home country. It should be borne in mind however that it does not automatically follow, that a previous visa grant will result in a future visa grant. Each case is considered on the basis of the particular circumstances of the case at hand at the time of consideration. The onus rests with the applicant at the time in question to demonstrate to the satisfaction of the deciding officer that the visa sought should be granted.
